Sen. Dianne Feinstein (D-CA): Brent Maier received an inquiry today from James Peterson, Environmental Counsel in the Senator's DC office who called about the Administrator's statement issued today following the Gold King Mine release regarding ongoing field work by EPA at other mines at that Regional Administrators were instructed to immediately cease any field investigation work at mines including tailings facilities, unless there is imminent risk in a specific case. James wanted to know how many current mines in California that EPA is involved in cleanup operations and whether any of these pose the potential risk such as the Gold King Mine situation. James also would like to know whether EPA is reaching out to other California Resource Agency's to see whether the State of California is also undertaking a review of mine cleanup operations they may be involved in as well. Brent Maier will reach out to John Hillenbrand to see whether we can provide James Peterson with any updated information following the issuance of today's statement by the Administrator.
